These analysts work in the Childhood Lead Screening laboratory and have daily, direct contact with human blood.

These staff work in the Amherst Drug Laboratory. They do not analyze clinical specimens but may come into contact with evidence that is contaminated with blood, urine or other bodily fluids.

These staff work in the Boston Drug Laboratory. They do not analyze clinical specimens but may come into contact with evidence that is contaminated with blood, urine or other bodily fluids.

These staff work in the Chemical Threat Laboratory and may be involved in handling & testing of human blood and/or urine.

Can any of these people be considered to NOT come into any contact with human blood/fluids/specimens during the course of their work here? Phillips? Any data entry people? Assuming that drugs may have coming into contact with human fluids?
